Adam Jacobs

I was born in Essex in 1980 and moved to London in 2003.

I tend to produce only 2-4 pieces per year. In my own opinion, my work can be controversial, weird, odd and may not suit all tastes. I usually come up with an idea, sometimes based on an image that may be from a magazine, poster etc and then base my piece around it.

I do not do any preparatory work in terms of drawing or draft pieces but get stuck in straight away, meaning that there is some randomness to the work as well as other pre-determined parts.

The majority of my work is a combination of oils, pastels and cut out images that are then stuck on top.

I am very influenced by the Pop artists such as Warhol, Lichtenstein, as well as my favourite artist, Jean-Michel Basquiat, and appreciate their use of colour, graphics and lettering.
