

ISLINGTON ART SOCIETY

MEMBERS

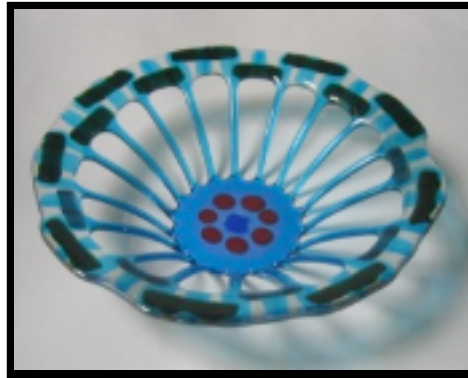

Ann Hyde-Harrison

Ann studied at Edinburgh College of Art and, as an architect, spent her career designing schools.

She became Head of Construction Division for Inner London Education Authority, managing ninety professional staff: designing and building new educational establishments; extending, adapting & maintaining existing ones.

The abolition of ILEA, allowed her to retire early, giving an opportunity to spend more time on batik and, more recently, silk painting, enamelling and making fused glass.

Ann studied batik under Noel Dyrenforth and has exhibited widely including two London exhibitions at Burgh House in Hampstead.

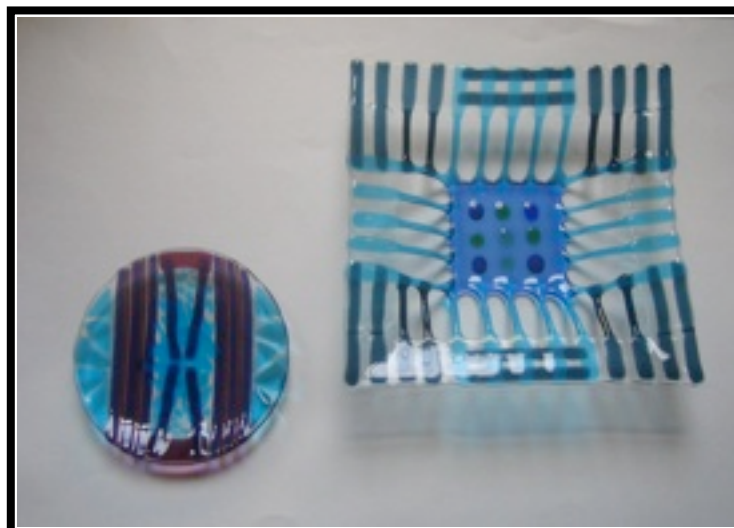

Fused spectrum glass 30cm round (above)

Two small enamel dishes (right)

Fused spectrum glass
12cm round and 30cm square (below)

Use the back arrow of your browser to return to List of Members