Lynn Bindman

Lynn Bindman worked as a University scientist and teacher, returning to art after her retirement. She paints mainly portraits of family and former colleagues, in oils, but also enjoys painting still life and landscapes, in oils or gouache.

Her art training has been in weekly portrait classes at Lauderdale House (with Zoe Hirson) still life at the Highgate Literary and Scientific Institute (Vincent Milne), and life classes for intensive fortnights at the Slade summer school (Ian Rowlands).

Lynn has exhibited in London at the Mall Galleries and at the Bankside Gallery as part of the EAC art awards, and locally at the Highgate Gallery and Lauderdale House.
